

THE SHEPHERD UNIVERSITY COMMON READING PROGRAM PRESENTS:

FOOD FIGHT LECTURE SERIES – ROUND 1

“Living La Vita Local”

WEDNESDAY
OCTOBER 14, 2009
7:00 pm

IN THE BYRD CENTER FOR LEGISLATIVE STUDIES (CLS)
AUDITORIUM ON THE SU CAMPUS

In conjunction with the 2009/2010
Common Reading
selection

Animal, Vegetable, Miracle
by Barbara Kingsolver

Four panelists will share different perspectives about the fresh and local food movement:

Lex Miller, who attempted eating locally grown food for a year;

David Ober, a local farmer who raises pigs similarly to the ways discussed in the book;

Liz Gallery, owner of Stone Soup Bistro in Shepherdstown, who will speak about running a successful restaurant business using only fresh and local foods;

and Jack Shaw, Director of Dining Services at Shepherd University, joined by food supplier, Amy Bernstein, who will discuss using fresh and local foods in a large-scale, institutional setting.

Dr. Clarissa Matthews, professor of Environmental Studies, will moderate the panel.

The Food Fight series is co-sponsored by the Byrd Center for Legislative Studies.
A reception for the panelists and audience will follow the event.

For more information on this and other One Book, One Community & Common Reading events, visit www.shepherd.edu/commonreading or call Judi McIntyre at 304-876-5396.

